PUBLIC MEETING · BRADFORD

Can there be a revolution in Britain?

KATE MARSHALL

General Secretary of the RCP

Wednesday 23rd May · Central Library 7.30pm

For the first time in many years the conflict between the classes in Britain has come out into the open as a direct confrontation. The dispute between the miners and the Coal Board has turned into open warfare between the working class and the capitalist system. The Government and the employers are prepared to use all the resources at their disposal - the police, the courts and the law - to crush the miners' resistance. Their response shows what workers can expect if they stand up and fight for a decent life.

The economic disease of capitalism has no short-term cure. And for workers that means more sacrifices, more indignity and a future without hope. That is why anything less than the overthrow of capitalism can bring no lasting benefit to the working class. But can there be a revolution in Britain?

PREPARING FOR POWER

PREPARING FOR POWER is a week-long series of talks, debates, discussions, films and fun organised by the Revolutionary Communist Party. This year it's being held at the Polytechnic of Central London from Friday 13 July to Friday 20 July.

The miners strike has revealed the divisions in the working class which give the State it's apparently invincible strength. Preparing for Power offers the chance to learn more about Marxism; to discuss the vital questions of the day and to map out a strategy for winning the struggles to come.

Hundreds of people; employed and unemployed workers, trade union militants, campaign activists, intellectuals and people who want to know more about the RCP will be there to share their knowledge and experience. Join them!
